About This Index

This index records the source material examined during the Founder Intelligence™ review of Brampton & Smith Group.

Evidence identifiers are assigned by KINGLIS for analytical traceability. They do not alter, grade or classify the source material.

The Evidence Index records what was reviewed. It does not contain analytical findings. Findings are presented in the Private Intelligence Dossier.

TRACEABILITY

Where the Private Intelligence Dossier cites an evidence reference or reconstructed sequence, the identifiers in this index provide the corresponding source trail.

Example · Sequence S05 cites E049–E054. Those six evidence items appear individually in this index.

How the Index Supports the Dossier

The Private Intelligence Dossier presents reconstructed operating sequences and analytical findings. This index provides the source references behind that work.

A reference to E049–E054, for example, identifies the six evidence items used in the Spain travel expenditure reconstruction. The analytical conclusion is not contained in any single source item; it is derived from the movement observed across the sequence.

This distinction is central to Founder Intelligence™: KINGLIS does not treat an isolated message, meeting or document as the organization. It examines how evidence connects across work, decisions, authority and ownership.

ANALYTICAL BOUNDARY

Evidence references identify material reviewed. They do not imply fault, performance grading or psychological assessment.

Founder Intelligence™ examines observable operating behaviour evidenced in the material reviewed.
